Teaching Philosophy: Life is constantly about learning and adapting. In every adventurous experience, learning comes back to the foundation of developing meaningful and positive connections to experiences, people and places. I have been privilege to have a teaching journey that has challenged me to raise my standards as a person and now as a teacher I strive to model those high standards in my interaction and engagement of young people from a classroom that has spanned several countries and half my lifetime. I look forward to working with your child and guiding them on their adventurous learning steps towards a lifetime of future success.
